

Action Research Workshop with Professor Jean McNiff

This seminar will present ideas about the principles and practices of action research. Participants will benefit from discussion of what action research is, how to do it, why to do it and some of the problematics involved. It will also consider ideas about how and why to write action research for publication. The seminar will be interactive with a range of practical activities to show the processes of research in action.

Jean McNiff is Professor of Educational Research at York St John University. She worked for 20 years in Ireland and contributed to seminal thinking about the nature of the ongoing professional education of teachers. Her writings are used internationally on higher education and professional learning programmes.

Date and Time: Thursday 14th December 2017, 19:00-21:30 hrs

Venue: Drumcondra Education Centre, Drumcondra, Dublin 9

Cost: €20-

To book a place please call us on 01-8576400 with debit/credit card details